Miracles Do Happen... But They Often Need Help!

Here's a young man whose injury is a result of a hard played football game.

Ten years ago, the odds of complete recovery following serious injury to head, body or limb were slight. Today through a combination of advanced medical technology and rehabilitative treatment, such injuries heal more quickly and patients make remarkable recoveries. Often this requires a closeknit team of specialists who skillfully guide the recuperating patient and family through daily therapy with all the warmth and support everyone wants and needs.

We have just described RehabCare at Flint Osteopathic Hospital. Everything on site, right where it's needed. And, at FOH, your family becomes a part of the healing team.

Chad can tell you, "It's going to be great to get back to the team and the game!" That's after the FOH RehabCare team have performed their special kind of miracle.

In tonight's program you will find an application blank and the rules for nomination. Fill it out tonight or take it home, but help us by nominating what you know to be Flint's Finest.

As the president of this organization, it is impossible to explain the exhilaration felt at having been a part of one of the most successful municipal Sports Halls of Fame in the country. It calls for a lot of hard work by a lot of people, but it also calls for the high caliber of athlete turned out in this city. Flint is more than an industrial city — it is a city with the kind of sports heritage that any city in the country can point to with pride. That's what we do every year. Point with pride. We show the youth of this town how much can be accomplished in life when you set goals and then never stop till you reach them.

Running In Big Shoes

Thanks To Hall Of Fame Honorees Crim and Craig, Flint Is On International Map

By Phil Pierson
Journal sports writer

They put Flint on the international running map.

Those efforts have made Lois Craig and Bobby Crim giants on the Flint sports scene.

Tonight, Craig and Crim receive the Special Service Award from the Greater Flint Area Sports Hall of Fame.

The two newest recipients of the prestigious award have been the backbone of the Crim Road Race which in 15 years has raised more than $1.2 million for the benefit of Special Olympics.

Crim, former Speaker of the House of Representatives in the State Legislature, was the untiring inspirational leader in founding the race.

Craig, then the administrative assistant on Crim's Lansing staff, has been race director since the event began in 1977.

"They've touched the hearts of so many, not only in raising so much money for handicapped children but in adding to this area's sports reputation," said Circuit Court Judge Duncan Beagle, president of the GFASHF.

Now known simply as "The Crim," the race has grown to be come a Flint sports extravaganza.

From a field of 758 contestants for the inaugural 10-mile race, The Crim now includes six events. A record 5,276 runners competed in this year's 10-mile race and the total entry of 11,638 for all events also was a record for the competition on Flint's city streets.

Runner's World magazine has regularly selected The Crim among the best races in the country. The race has drawn entrants from the Soviet Union and annually attracts several world class runners.

It has become much larger than Craig believed was possible in the early years when much of the work was done at night in the kitchen of her home.

"I never dreamed that many runners would show up," Craig said.

"The whole Crim, since it began, has been just one big wonderful experience.

"When it first started, I wasn't sure it was going to be more than that one race. I was very lucky to get in on the ground floor and be part of that growth. It's very exciting."

In the early years, Craig worked on the race part time and commuted daily to Lansing for her job at the State Capitol.

Now she works full time on the Crim, having left her job on the research staff of the Michigan House of Representatives when Crim left the legislature.

"We're constantly looking into the future, constantly starting new projects," Craig said. "You just don't catch up with this sport at all."

Craig said the race's success has been the result of community support.

"We've taken the race through a couple of bad recessions and you would have thought the race would have a difficult time hanging on," Craig said. "That has never been the

Joe Kinzel

Multi-Sports Competitor and Winner

By Len Hoyes
Journal sports writer

Joe Kinzel loved personal challenges.

He usually came out a winner, too, and always described his accomplishments as fun.

Like the time he marveled at the figure skating prowess of immortal Sonja Henie.

He diagrammed her performance on graph paper, then taught himself.

He and a partner won the pairs championship of Genesee County and Kinzel was runner-up in singles.

Like the time he decided to become a good bowler and predicted he would reach a 190-pin average within two years.

Peter Panos, a longtime friend, remembers telling Kinzel, "That's a tough task. It takes an awful lot of practice."

Practice he did, successful he got. He averaged between 190 and 202 in his prime.

On record in The Flint Journal is a 662 actual series bowled Nov. 12, 1952, at Nightingale.

He was a local table tennis champion.

He won the state golf tournament for left-handers.

He won the National Lefthanders Golf Tournament.

He was an ambidextrous golfer.

He began as a left-hander, switched to right-handed for a year, played both ways the following year, then settled down to playing left-handed.

He gave golf lessons for approximately 20 years.

When rivals demanded a handicap, he switched to right-handed which was really no handicap to the multi-talented star.

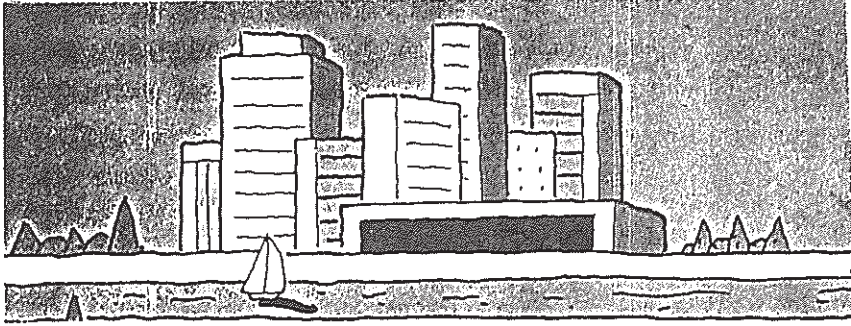

He won the city marbles championship as a left-hander because he couldn't handle an agate with his right hand.

Dedication.

Nothing describes Terry Furlow's rise to fame on the basketball court more than a dedicated work ethic.

Long after practice was over at Northern High, at Michigan State's Jenison Field House or in arenas that house National Basketball Association teams, there was the lean and wiry Furlow, perfecting the rainbow jump shot that would be his trademark.

He would practice hours on that jumper to become an outstanding scorer, one of the best players in Flint history.

Furlow, one of this year's inductees to the Greater Flint Area Sports Hall of Fame, died tragically in an automobile accident near Cleveland on May 23, 1980.

He was only 26, near the peak of his basketball career as a member of the Utah Jazz, and a long way from entering the prime of life.

But Furlow's legacy remains on the Flint-area sports scene.

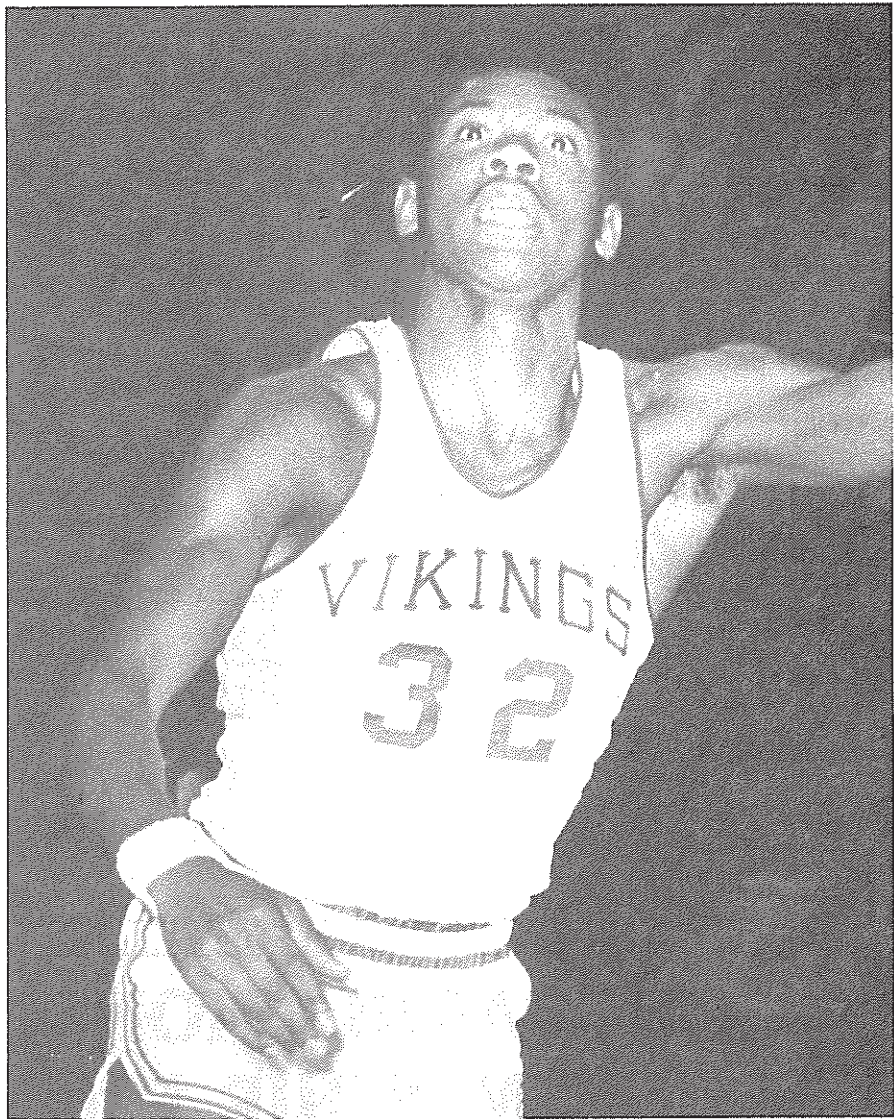

Bill Frieder, Furlow's basketball coach at Northern High, remembers his enthusiasm for the game he loved so much.

"Terry was a late bloomer," said Frieder. "He played on the sophomore team, then the junior varsity team as a junior. He didn't make the varsity until his senior year, the same year we went undefeated and won another state championship."

Frieder said Flint's summer basketball program helped Furlow in continuing to develop his skills.

"If it hadn't been for the summer program, I don't know where Terry would have wound up," said Frieder. "He worked very hard to improve himself in those summer games."

Northern and Frieder had shocked the state prep scene in 1971 by upsetting heavily favored Detroit Kettering in the Class A championship game.

From high school to college to the Pros, Terry Furlow made a name for himself on the basketball court.

But in 1972, with three starters gone from that team, Frieder faced a rebuilding job.

His starting cast that year included Wayman Britt and Ricardo Jones at the guards, Dennis Johnson at center, and Furlow and Joel Ragland at the forwards. Raymond Bridges was a valuable sixth man.

The Vikings shocked the Class A basketball world again by going undefeated (28-0), beating Pontiac Central 74-71 in the championship game in Jenison Field House.

Little did Furlow know he would spend his next four seasons in East Lansing.

"The guy we really wanted on that Northern team was Britt," said former MSU Coach Gus Ganakas. "I don't think there was a lot of interest in Terry at the start, from us or anyone else."

Ganakas failed to land Britt, who wound up at the University of Michigan, but in the spring of 1972, Michigan State had one scholarship left.

"I came to Flint one day to talk to Britt and saw Furlow walking in the hall at Northern," said Ganakas. "He asked me if he had a chance to play at Michigan State. I said I didn't know. I never made a visit to his house to see him, but the next fall we sent him a letter."

Ganakas said he saw Furlow shooting the basketball in the third-floor gymnasium at Jenison in the fall

Good Choice — Switch to football paid off for Dennis Johnson

By Phil Pierson
Journal sports writer

Dennis Johnson intended to play only basketball, which was just fine with his mother, Lulu.

It was not fine with Coach Chuck McLeod, who wanted to wrap Johnson's 6-foot-5, 225-pound frame in a Northwestern High football uniform.

"You're too big to play basketball, son," McLeod said.

"You'll have to convince my mother," Johnson replied.

McLeod became a salesman.

"He just kept after her," Johnson said.

The football coach won.

So did Johnson's athletic career.

For two years he was one of the premier performers in the Saginaw Valley Conference, earning Most Valuable Player honors for his senior season in 1975.

Then it was off to the University of Southern California, where Johnson became a three-year starter and an All-American linebacker. He was a part of two triumphant Trojan teams in the Rose Bowl, including 1979 when USC edged Michigan, 17-10.

That game will always be remembered by Michigan fans for the "phantom touchdown" scored by USC's Charles White on a play in which he appeared to fumble before crossing the goal line.

Johnson remembers the play differently.

"It was a touchdown," Johnson said. "It will always be a touchdown whenever we talk about it."

The two Rose Bowl victories (1980 against Ohio State was the other) are among the many highlights of an extraordinary career that carried Johnson into the National Football League where he played 5½ seasons with the Minnesota Vikings and completed his career in 1987 with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

"It was a dream come true,"

Part of two triumphant Trojan teams, Johnson went on to play 5½ seasons with the Vikings and ended his career with Tampa Bay.

MacDonald A Winner On Field, Sideline

By Phil Pierson
Journal Sports Writer

He was losing the battle, but Andy MacDonald wouldn't stop fighting.

That is why MacDonald, a football coach, was in Flint on a cold, snowy February night to watch a basketball game.

Among the participants in that game were two of the state's finest high school football players, Rick Leach and Gene Johnson. They were players MacDonald dearly wanted to coach as offensive coordinator at Michigan State University.

No chance.

They were headed to the University of Michigan and made it official the morning after that basketball game by signing national letters of intent to become Wolverines. MacDonald did everything possible to keep Michigan State in the picture in one of the most intense recruiting battles ever waged in Flint schools.

"Andy was a bulldog recruiter," said Denny Stolz, the former MSU head coach and MacDonald's boss from 1973-75. "He was really disappointed when we didn't get Leach. He had promised me he could get him and figured he would have an advantage because he was from Flint, too."

MacDonald had been a star quarterback at Northern in 1946 and '47 and the Vikings' head coach for seven seasons, producing two 9-0 records and two state Class A championships.

MacDonald knew how to win and usually did, but the Battle of '75 was one that could not be won. There was too much Michigan blue influence to allow the two high school stars to wear Michigan State green — even when it was represented by the personable ex-Northern coach.

MacDonald, who died in 1985 at age 54, was known for performances on the field, his extensive knowledge and his ability to motivate and develop players.

"There's no question your hall of fame would not be complete without Andy in there," said longtime friend Jerry Burns, head coach of the Minnesota Vikings in the National Football League.

There was only one thing the personable MacDonald ever wanted to be — a football coach. It was a career he lived to the fullest.

Burns and MacDonald became friends when both were high school coaches, Burns at Redford St. Mary in suburban Detroit. MacDonald and Burns coached together twice. Burns made MacDonald one of his first choices as an assistant when Burns became head coach at the University of Iowa in 1961.

MacDonald served four years as backfield coach of the Hawkeyes, leaving in 1965 to become head coach at Arizona State College at Flagstaff (now known as Northern Arizona) — a job he was recommended for by the Iowa coach.

Their paths crossed again in 1985 when MacDonald joined Burns as an assistant to Minnesota Vikings Coach Bud Grant.

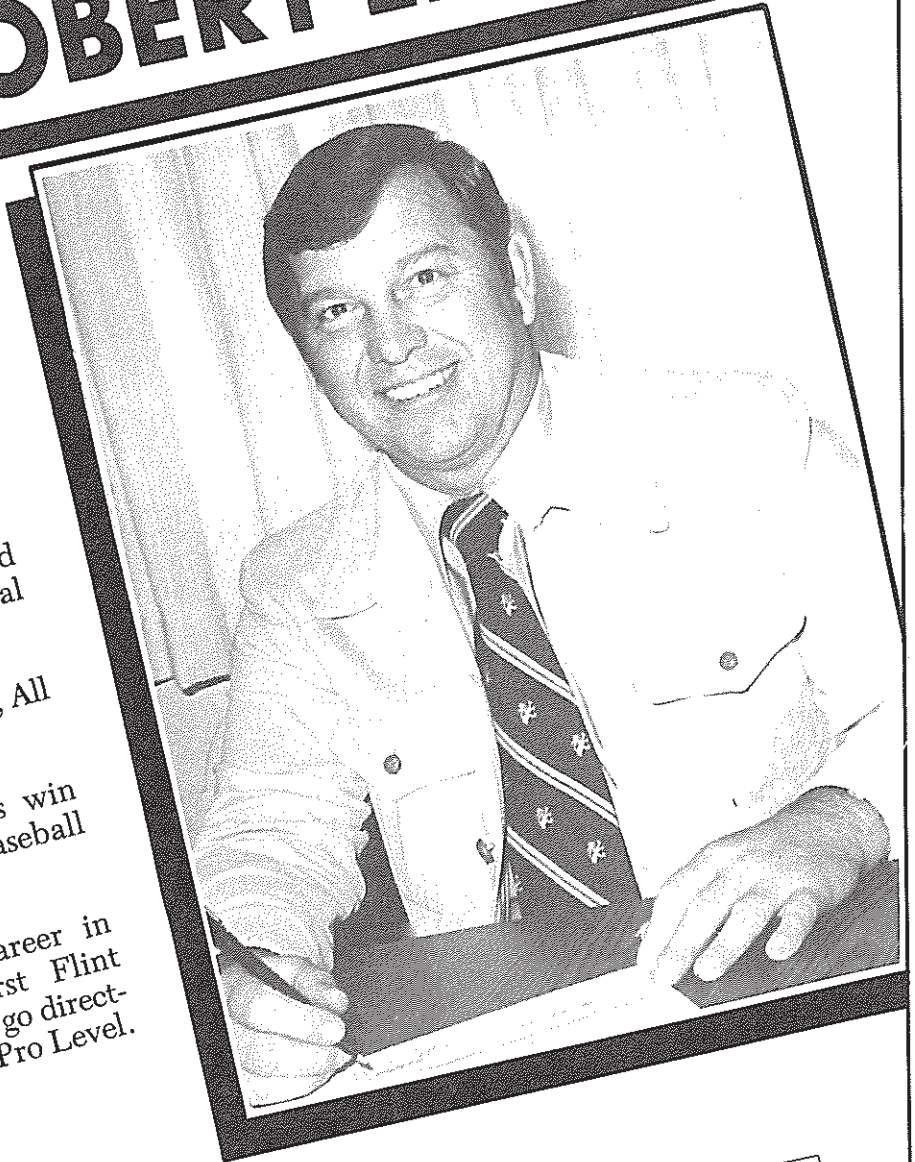

Burns and MacDonald never got to coach together in a pro game. MacDonald died May 25, 1985, less than four months after becoming a Viking aide.

"He (MacDonald) was one of my great friends, there was no finer guy," Burns said. "He had one of the great

Versatility Kept Pruitt In Majors For Years

By Weldon B. Johnson
Journal sports writer

If versatility were a sure ticket to the Baseball Hall of Fame, Ron Pruitt would be as good as in.

Pruitt, now 40, was a three-sport athlete at Central High before going on to star in baseball at Michigan State University and eventually make it to the major leagues. His versatility (he played catcher in addition to just about everywhere else on the field) may not earn him a spot in the Baseball Hall, but it did allow him to enjoy an 11-year professional career.

Pruitt faced challenges every step of the way during his baseball career, and some of those obstacles were of his own making. However, his ability and versatility always seemed to pull him through.

He began his career at Central as a shortstop but when it was discovered he was well suited to be a catcher, Pruitt found a home behind home plate.

"When I was a sophomore I was on the junior varsity team," Pruitt said from his home in Medina, Ohio. "I was good enough to play on the varsity but I was probably down for some disciplinary reasons.

"I had a good doubleheader or something one day and I guess (Coach Tim Bograkos) had to bring me up. That was the start of my having to prove myself every step of the way.

"But he (Bograkos) started me catching. Not too many guys can do it in high school, I guess not too many guys can do it period. It was something I did because I saw it as a chance to play more."

That was the same reasoning behind his "utility player" status at Michigan State.

After captaining the freshman team

After playing for the Cleveland Indians Ron Pruitt moved over to the Chicago White Sox in 1980. He finished his professional career three years later with San Francisco.

(Pruitt played in the last year before freshmen were granted varsity eligibility in college sports) at Michigan State during the 1969 season, Pruitt was part of Coach Dan Litwhiler's platoon system in his last three seasons.

"He was a former major league player and he had seen them platoon guys," said Pruitt. "He wanted his best lineup in there and I was the best guy to play anywhere. We had another left-handed (hitting) catcher, so to keep my bat in the lineup he'd play me at other positions.

"The only difference then was I played all the time. They just put me where it was convenient to get another bat in the lineup."

Pruitt and the Spartans both benefited from the system as MSU won a Big Ten championship in 1971 and for a while was the top-ranked team in college baseball. Their season was ended, however, on a home run by an Ohio University player named Mike Schmidt (who later went on to stardom in the major leagues) in the opening round of the NCAA tournament.

Pruitt was an All-Big Ten pick as a catcher in both the 1971 and 1972 seasons and also earned All-American honors in 1972.

After four seasons at Michigan State, Pruitt was a second-round draft pick of the Texas Rangers in 1972. At the Rangers farm team in Denver, Pruitt had an encounter with another Thanks, Flint. Hall Inductee Bob Leach Credits Area Tutoring For His Success.

By Len Hoyes
Journal sports writer

Bob Leach has been gone from the Flint athletic scene since 1967 but hasn't forgotten his roots.

"Whatever I've accomplished, the credit goes to my upbringing in Flint, parents, family, friends and the overall sports program," said the 59-year-old Leach who lives in Big Rapids.

"Athletics opened a lot of doors for me and I'm grateful to Flint for making it possible."

He was a star athlete in three sports at Central High, a letterman at the University of Michigan and coached on three levels: high school, college and professional.

He played for undefeated teams and was assistant coach and head coach of other undefeated teams. He attained more than 100 victories on the three levels.

Those accomplishments earned election to the Greater Flint Area Sports Hall of Fame.

"That will be a special moment for me," said Leach, "because many of those who've been honored previously had a hand in my development. Men like Nap LaVoie and Stan Broome.

"Nap hired me as an assistant coach at Central and gave me the head job. He was a special man because he had a heart as big as himself. He never second-guessed his coaches."

Leach remembers being the ballboy for Broome long before going to Central. One of his jobs was to retrieve foul balls from Gilkey Creek which runs through the campus.

Bob is four minutes younger than his twin, Dick, who has retired as physical education consultant for the Flint Board of Education.

Bob is officially retired as assistant vice president for alumni and development at Ferris State College. He has been retained as a consultant.

The Leach twins were virtually inseparable through the Flint youth programs and while at Central in 1948-49-50.

One half of the renowned Leach Twin Duo, Bob Leach joins men who directed him — like Nap Lavoie and Stan Broome — in Flint's Sports Hall of Fame.

They played for two undefeated championship teams in the Boy's Baseball Program, Bob pitching three no-hitters in one season. They played for three state or league championship basketball teams within an eight-day span in 1947.

They combined for 28 points on March 29 while leading Court Street Methodist to the state church title at Jackson. Two days later they helped Whittier win the city junior high championship. Five days later they helped Whittier Hi-Y take the city YMCA crown.

Bob earned five letters at Central and was a sophomore on its 1947 state championship football team, narrowly missing a letter. He also missed a letter in 1948 because of injury, but in 1959 was named to the All-Saginaw Valley Conference and All-State second teams.

of 1972. The coach knew that he had a budding star.

"You could see that he was very dedicated and had excellent work habits," said Ganakas. "He really wanted to make it here."

Furlow turned out to be more than a pleasant surprise for the Spartans.

He played a lot in his freshman year, was a starter by the next season and won back-to-back Big Ten Conference scoring titles in 1975 and '76.

Against Iowa during his senior year, Furlow poured in a school record 50 points, a mark that still stands in the MSU record book.

"After the Iowa game, Terry went out and scored 44 in the next one," recalled Ganakas. "He was never satisfied with a so-so performance. He had to be the top guy on the floor every night."

Finally, Furlow had attracted the attention of almost everyone because of his dedicated work ethic.

In June 1976, Furlow was the top draft choice of the Philadelphia 76ers, the eighth pick overall.

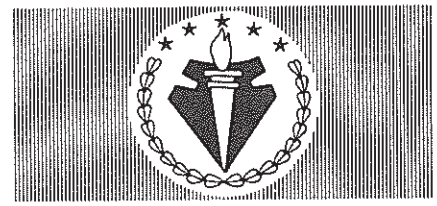

Furlow played in only 32 games for Philadelphia in his rookie season and was traded to Cleveland where he averaged 8.9 points in 53 games. He later had stints with the Atlanta Hawks and Jazz.

In 1979-80, he averaged 13.9 points and had emerged as a solid backcourt performer for the Jazz. One month after the end of the season, Furlow died.

From high school to college to the pros, Furlow had more than made a name for himself on the basketball court.

"I have never coached anyone in my life more dedicated than Terry Furlow," said Frieder, now head coach at Arizona State.

"He simply made himself into a great player."

personalities of anybody in coaching I've ever known. He got along with everybody. The only thing Andy wanted to be was a football coach."

The Vikings were the third NFL team to employ MacDonald. He also served stints as the offensive backfield coach of the Seattle Seahawks and the Buffalo Bills.

MacDonald's gridiron career began at Northern where he was a standout quarterback in 1946 and '47. In those two seasons, Northern lost only once in the Saginaw Valley Conference, won one league championship and was 14-2-2 overall.

After graduating from Northern, MacDonald played as a freshman at the University of Maryland before transferring to Central Michigan where he capped a three-year career by leading the nation's small college passers in 1950 and '51. His 114 completions in 1951 set a national small college record.

MacDonald declined an offer from the Pittsburgh Steelers, preferring to complete his college education. His ambitions were to become a coach.

He took the first step in 1953 when MacDonald joined the staff at Northern as an assistant under Burt Smith. When Smith left to become an assistant at MSU, MacDonald was appointed Northern's head coach in 1954 after only one year as an assistant.

"Sometimes when I sit down at night and think about it, I find it difficult to believe," MacDonald said after his appointment by the late Guy Houston, Northern principal and former Northern coach.

"Coming back here as head coach is something that everyone who ever played at Northern under Coach Houston probably had dreamed about."

In seven seasons at Northern, MacDonald's teams compiled a 41-18-3 record. The Vikings were named state A champions after 9-0 records in 1956 and '60.

Leaving Northern was a difficult decision, but it was something Mac-

Donald believed was necessary in order to pursue his coaching ambitions.

His four seasons with Burns at Iowa were followed by four seasons at Arizona State Flagstaff where as a head coach MacDonald fashioned a 22-17-1 record.

MacDonald left Arizona in 1969 to become offensive coordinator at the University of Tulsa. That one-year term was followed by two seasons as assistant coach in charge of the offense at Colorado State.

MacDonald was out of the coaching field for one year, in 1972, before returning in 1973 as a valuable aide to Stolz at MSU.

"He was one of the first outstanding quarterbacks in college to become a coach and was probably one of the most well-versed offensive coordinators in the passing game," Stolz said.

MacDonald is survived by his wife "Dolly" Schroeder MacDonald, his high school sweetheart, and three daughters, Laurie, Patti and Anne; also five grandchildren.

Pruitt

player who would later go on to star in the majors.

"I replaced a guy named Bill Madlock there," said Pruitt. "When I got drafted, he was struggling in Denver so I went there. I took his place in winter ball down in the Dominican Republic that year, too.

"That was about the last time I would have been able to replace him."

Though he didn't match Madlock's success in the majors, Pruitt was able to use his versatility to keep a place in the league.

He saw limited action with the Rangers and was traded to Cleveland in 1975. With the Indians, he saw action as a catcher, outfielder, designated hitter and even third baseman. It was with the Indians where he had perhaps his best season as he was the team's starting catcher for the first 2½ months of the 1978 season when Bo Diaz, who was then a rookie, broke his ankle.

Although he felt he deserved to keep the starting job, Pruitt said he realizes it may have been his versatility that kept him on the bench.

"There are certain players on every team that are needed just so you still looked like a major league team for that period of time when another guy is out," said Pruitt. "You need guys who can fill in just about anywhere. That was my role.

"I played regularly for about 2½ months and I did quite well."

Pruitt went on to fill that role for another team as he was shipped from the Indians to the Chicago White Sox in 1980. After a couple of seasons in the minor leagues, he finished his career with the San Francisco Giants in 1983.

He retired after the 1983 season and went into the contracting business in Cleveland. He left that after four years to become a car salesman at Spitzer Chevrolet in Northfield, Ohio. But he said he never regretted his decision to give up the game.

"I was getting tired of moving around," said Pruitt. "I was on the tail end of the days before the big money was coming into the game. You had to be a star to stay in the minors or they would just try to weed you out. There was no sense in them paying you three times as much as they could a younger guy who was still learning the game."

Throughout his career (both as an amateur and a professional), Pruitt picked up a reputation as being somewhat of a prankster. His stunts included getting into a wrestling match on an airplane with a Cleveland relief pitcher and donning a conehead mask during the national anthem at one Indians game.

Pruitt said those incidents could be chalked up to immaturity and were just "horseplay that got out of hand." He has mellowed in recent years, and he and wife Lorraine are now the parents of four girls (Stacy, Natalie, Veronica and Stephanie).

In fact, parenthood was one of the reasons he decided it was necessary to finish college nearly 20 years after he left Michigan State.

"I got my degree last year," he said. "I finished up at Akron University but the degree is still from Michigan State. I kind of wondered why I never did, so I said the heck with it; I went back and finished.

"I have kids now and I figured this would be one less thing they could hold over my head."

Leach

"Fourteen quarters were required for a letter and I got only 12 in 1947," he said. "I cried for a week, because I didn't get a chance to play in the Thanksgiving Day game where there was double credit for quarters."

He was too small to play football beyond his freshman year at Michigan but concentrated on baseball. He was a member of the NCAA championship team in 1953 and lettered in 1954.

His first coaching job produced a 25-7 record in four years at Carson City, going 4-4 in his first season after taking over a team which had lost 18 straight games. He also had a 35-6 record as head baseball coach.

His first love was football.

"It's faster than baseball and there's more strategy," he said. "And it's a lot more emotional."

He came to Central in 1958 and was an assistant coach of its state championship team that year. He had a 41-20-2 record for seven seasons as the Indians' head coach, 1960-66.

Leach went to Ferris State as head coach, taking over a team which had won once in 26 previous games.

His four-year record was 17-15-2, including 7-0-1 in 1968 when he earned coach-of-the-year honors from District 23 of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics. His undefeated club had 32 players from the Flint area among a squad of 65 and Jack Hinkle and Roger Elford of the Flint area were assistant coaches.

His next stop was the NFL's St. Louis Cardinals, the first Flint product to coach at the professional level. He departed after two years when Coach Bob Holloway and his entire staff were fired in a shakeup of the top management.

He turned down offers from Washington and Atlanta, returning to Ferris State as an administrator.

"I loved pro coaching, but spending 70 or 80 hours a week was too much," Leach said.

Now he devotes time to five children, all college graduates, and nine grandchildren.

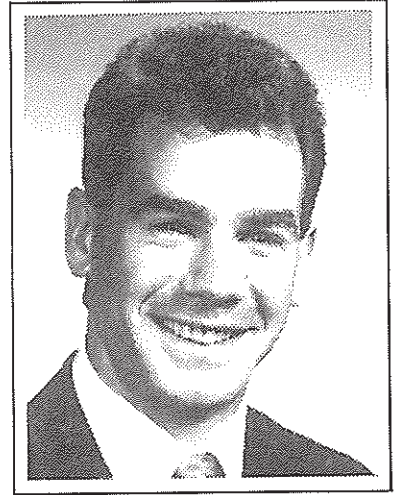

He saw five proteges graduate into professional football and had the privilege of coaching Flushing's Bob Rowe, another Greater Flint Area Hall of Famer, while with St. Louis. A former Central High pupil, George Hoey, also played for the Cardinals.

"No one had more enjoyment in coaching than I," Leach said. "But you can't be successful unless you have good talent to work with and good assistant coaches. I was lucky to have both."

Kinzel

"There was nothing he couldn't do when he set his mind to it," said Panos.

Kinzel achieved everlasting acclaim on May 28, 1937, when he tossed a no-hitter in Central High's 1-0 victory over Northern.

He struck out 17, including the final 10 in order. He also scored the game's only run after singling for one of the Indians' three hits.

He got an 18th out in a rundown and threw out two batters, thus having a hand in all except one putout.

It was the only no-hitter in the City Series for 23 years until the late Art

McKee matched it on May 26, 1951, while leading Northern to a 2-0 victory.

Northern's Joe Roberson, also a Hall of Fame member, pitched a 1-0 no-hitter against Central on May 6, 1952.

Panos was Kinzel's catcher for the no-hitter and remembers it vividly.

He said, "Joe was just wild enough to be effective. Few batters had the nerve to dig in at the plate. He was wild up and down, not inside and outside."

"Even so, Joe was worried in the last inning of that no-hitter. We were playing at old Athletic Park which had a short fence in left field.

"The last batter was Mike Popodich. Joe was worried about a home run.

"We talked it over and I said 'Throw your favorite pitch.' He had a wicked crossfire which seldom missed the plate.

"The last pitch was barely six inches off the ground but it worked. The batter swung and missed."

It was the only no-hitter in the late Stan Broome's 17-year coaching career at Central.

Kinzel gave Panos the ball from the final out.

Panos said, "I treasured that ball for years until Broome's retirement party. Then Joe and I presented it to him. I have no idea where it might be now."

Kinzel's gem against Northern wasn't a one-time thing.

He pitched three shutouts against the Vikings, including two in 1936. He pitched 491/3 innings, yielding 17 hits and 12 runs. He struck out 100 and allowed 36 bases on balls.

In another notable contest against Northern, he struck out 11 straight batters without surrendering so much as a foul.

When Tony Ananich ticked a foul, Northern Coach Jim Barclay leaped to his feet and shouted, "Hurray, we got a foul."

While pitching and winning seven games for Central, he also pitched in a Saginaw amateur league. He started 32 games, hurled the distance in each and won 'em all.

Kinzel was wooed by Michigan State with a baseball scholarship which he turned down. Later he admitted making the major mistake of his career.

He signed a contract and drifted around the minors for several years until a sore arm ended his pro career.

He returned home and played in the Flint Amateur Baseball Federation. Besides an occasional pitching stint, he became a left-handed catcher. He also managed Hamady's entry in the FAFB.

In a 1947 Journal interview, Kinzel said, "If I had it to do all over again, I would have taken the college offer. Kids get the wrong idea about organized sports."

Yet, he remained upbeat.

He said, "I've had more fun than anybody. I was pretty good at a lot of things but never excellent at any of them because of timing and injuries.

"That doesn't mean I'm sad or disappointed. I had too much fun. But young people with ideas today about pro sports should consider college first."

Just prior to his death in September at St. Joseph Hospital, Kinzel had learned of his induction into the Flint Sports of Hall of Fame from Executive Director Nick Pappadakis. "He was so thrilled," said Pappadakis.

ACHIEVEMENTS AND CONTRIBUTIONS TO ATHLETICS

SPORTS DEPARTMENT, FLINT JOURNAL

In 1985, two signs were hung outside Flint's IMA Sports Arena designating it as the "Home" of the Sports Hall of Fame.

Inside, this plaque says it all . . . "To honor those persons whose outstanding achievements have enriched Flint area sports."

"TO HONOR THOSE PERSONS . . ."

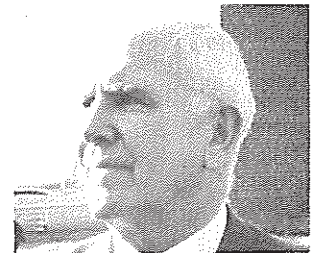

C. S. Mott

We invite you to visit the Flint Sports Hall of Fame, located at the IMA Sports Arena, where the plaques honoring tonight's inductees will be exhibited. Among those plaques are those of Charles S. Mott and Frank J. Manley, two men whose talents and fortitude have enriched the heritage of Flint.

The Board of Directors acknowledges that same philanthropy and community spirit proffered by The Flint Journal for making possible the plaques presented tonight.

We also invite anyone interested in participating in our nomination process to contact any member of the Board of Directors or Nick Papadakis, Executive Secretary, at 257-3252.

Your nominations are an integral part of being able "to honor those persons . . ."

Johnson

Johnson said of his pro career. "As you look back on it and contemplate what you did and how you got there, it's a great achievement."

"It's a great honor being inducted to the Hall of Fame, I didn't suspect anything like that," Johnson said. "I'm kind of overwhelmed with excitement. You always like to be remembered, especially in your hometown."

Flint will always be Johnson's hometown, but it will probably never again be his home.

He has loved the Los Angeles area since he first visited while being recruited by USC. He has lived in Southern California since his college days.

Johnson is working for a firm specializing in real estate financing with an eye toward opening his own business. During his professional career he operated a "very lucrative" cleaning business he recently sold.

Injuries shortened Johnson's professional career. He missed all of 1987 because of a pulled groin muscle and he was forced to retire following an accident on a motorcycle shortly before the start of training camp in 1988.

Johnson was part of a golden era in Flint prep sports, an era that extended into the mid-1980s and saw Flint gain national and international acclaim for the exploits of its athletes.

Many of those athletes, such as Johnson, were products of the Flint Community School System. Johnson was saddened to learn that era has diminished because cutbacks and other changes have reduced the overall quality of the school athletic programs.

"Flint has a lot of talent, a lot of guys who can play," Johnson said. "When I was playing, if they had cut off sports I never would have gone on to college.

"For a lot of guys sports are their way out. Sports build character, it builds attitude and gets you ready for the game of life. Whatever comes across it gets you ready for a lot of things.

"When a person feels good about themselves, what they're doing, everything falls into place," Johnson said.

"That's what happened to me. I was a naive kid, kind of shy when I first came out here. When I knew I could play on this level, my confidence went to another level."

Although he now works behind a desk, Johnson exercises regularly to keep himself close to his playing weight of 235-240.

"If you looked at me, you'd think I could play right now," Johnson said. "I run a lot. I take pride in keeping myself physically fit."

On the days he doesn't run, Johnson plays basketball, returning to the game he has always loved.

Even McLeod would approve now.

case because of the commitment the community has to the race.

"We're pretty excited about what we've been able to contribute to Special Olympics. It just speaks real high for this community. This community has been really very giving."

Proceeds from this year's race are expected to total $70,000.

"We're still counting but it's going to be very, very good," Craig said.

Craig is delighted at the prospect of receiving the Special Service Award along with her former employer.

"I'm not surprised he (Crim) was a candidate," Craig said. "I enjoyed working for Bobby. It was the greatest working experience I've ever had.

"He's very demanding, but he's terribly fair. When he gets excited about something it's wonderful to see."

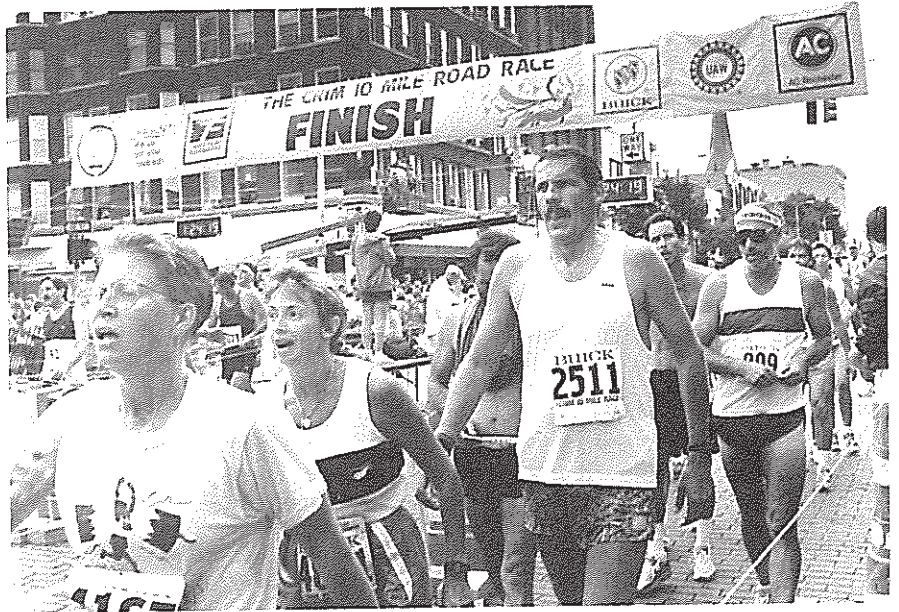

This will be the third time the Hall of Fame has honored two individuals with the Special Service Award.

Craig and Crim will join a prestigious list of those previously saluted beginning with Charles Stewart Mott and Frank Manley in 1980.

The recipients in the succeeding years have been: 1981-Frank Szczepanski, 1982-Everett Cummings,

1983-T.J. Halligan, 1984-Fred Lawson, 1985-Stan Broome and Nap LaVoie, 1986-Bill Minardo, 1987-Jerry Rideout, 1988-Dr. J. Vincent Murphy, 1989-Barry Edmonds, and 1990-Michael Gorman.

AT THE FINISH LINE — downtown Flint is the scene as the hundreds of runners in the Crim cross the finish line.
